As is vividly revealed in the photograph,there are two pictures showing two different situation.The first picture shows that although a boy has a large of books,he only own them and doesn't know them.The second picture depict a boy who has a plan that he want to do his ulmost to read 20 books.And we are informed that "The one only has books and the other is reading books."

In my option,I think the latter is better.The reason why is that it is important to take action to really deal with it rather than collect some goods which only set in a location.It gives a significant lesson that we don't just to own some things but have a plan and goal to learn it and address it.Because I think our growth is a progress to resolve something and to finish our goals.It needs to take measures rather than cheat yourself.

Only in this way can you acquire success.And in our life,we need a qualify that immidately we should tack action to finish something rather than waiting.
